

Distance

Distance

The scariest thing ever. You don't know if they will miss you or forget you. You just know that the distance and them, both JUST exist.

Distance

The most adventurous part of life. They're too close to your heart and you love them with everything you have. But at the same time, they're too away to embrace them in your arms. It's bewildering. You just know that the distance and them, both JUST exist.

Distance

Not just a word, but an entirety in itself. Because you know that no matter how far you are, you're just going to thank god for their existence. But you're also aware that no matter what you do, things aren't going to change, isn't it? Because you just know that the distance and them, both JUST exist.

Distance

Not always measured in kilometers or miles, but also in memories. The memories that you once shared with them. But the worst part is your awareness that the memories and them both JUST exist.

Distance

A hope that after the worst, something good is surely your way. The hope of waking up in the middle of the night just to see them sleeping peacefully by your side. Though you don't know when, but you do know that the hopes and them, both JUST exist.